Native helps AU design students shine

Cindy Barganier Interiors has worked with numerous Auburn University design students during the past 30 years, including recent work with two prominent interns.

BARGANIER

Barganier, formerly Cindy Etheredge, is a native of Greenville who serves on the Board of Advisors for the School of Interior Design. She now lives and works from Pike Road.

"Because of the strength of the Auburn program, we're able to attract some of the best talent in the country as evidenced by students like Lauren Mikus and Vanessa Oxford. The board, staff and administration have worked hard to get the program where it is, and I expect someday we'll be No. 1 in the country," Barganier said.
